NOW BEFORE COURT

RANSAS CITY. Dec. 22—The state today began, the introduction of evidence to support its side in the Missouri rate case.
In which the state seeks to prove that the 2-cent fare and maximum freight laws of Missouri are not confiscatory.

A. P. Tallaferro, who is connected with a New York firm of expert accountants, and who has been in charge of the state's investigations into the carnings and expenses of various railroads, declared in direct opposition to the long array if witnesses introduced by the defendants that the relative cost to the railway company's per passenger mile was less for state than for interstate traffic.

Mr. Tallaferro based his conclusion on the fact that most of the interstate traffic was handled on sleeping cars, which did not citry as large a number of passengers as the ordinary caches in which state passengers tode. It was further stated that practically all of the advertising expenses and most of the traffic expense should be charged to the cost of obtaining and carrying interstate passengers and competitive, or long-haul bustnose.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—Garbed in faultless frock coat, a white waistcoat, a lavender tie, patent leather shoes and Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin and a broken camera were centers of interest in Judge Newcomer's court today. Lyman Atwell, who accused the alderman of assault and battery committed at the first ward Democratic ball, fold his story. He was the owner of the camera and that its battered condition was owing to the fact that it had acted as an "ancillary receiver" camera in front of his face to ward off blows aimed at him.

"Did anyone else beside the alderman strike you?" Atwell was asked.

"Yes, there were four or five men and they all punched me. King, the cartoonist, and myself were waiting on the sidewalk in front of the coliseum to get pictures. Coughlin and a half dozen othors were standing at the entrance in full dress suits, receiving guests. Suddenly they made a rush.
They knocked King down and turned their attention to me."
